A country's new dynamism

Perhaps it will be said one day that the country which triggered off the Arab Spring will also be the country which best completed its Revolution. Within a year Tunisia would have shown the world a peaceful uprising of the whole society, the toppling of the regime with no excessive displays of violence, the establishment of a calm transitional period, successful elections with the massive participation of the Tunisians and finally a provisional government which accepted the rules of the democratic game. Civil society has been constantly demonstrating its dynamism and vigilance to ensure that the newly acquired liberties are indeed respected. The maturity of the Tunisians throughout this process has been applauded by the observers and hopefully it will lead to an authentic democracy which would be the first in the Arab world.

Under the sign of Modernity

Tunisian modernity has its roots in one-and-a-half century of a reformist movement. From the middle of the XIXth century, the country was already avant-garde in the Arab world by abolishing slavery and promulgating a Constitution. The university of the Ezzitouna mosque in Tunis stood out due to its progressist interpretations of Islam. Thinkers like Kheireddine and Tahar Haddad prompted the reflections on the modernisation of the State, the status of women and the social question. In Tunisia this led to the emergence of the first independent trade union in the Arab world (1924), whilst the Personal Status Code promulgated by Bourguiba ever since Independence abolished polygamy and repudiation, so that women had more-or-less equal rights with men (1956). Tunisia sparked off the Arab Spring and today it stands out in view of the high level of education of its youth, the vitality of civil society and the presence of women in public spaces.

Women of Tunisia

The situation of women in Tunisia is surprising and thus makes the country stand apart. Can the voluntarist policies of the XXth century provide an explanation for this ? In fact many great women have stood out throughout the country's history, such as Elyssa, the founder of Carthage, Kahena who lead the resistance against the Arab conquest, Jazia, the inspiration of the Hilal conquest, Aziza Othman, the benefactress princess who gave her name to a hospital in Tunis. Ever since the Middle Ages the aristocratic families included in the marriage contracts a clause protecting the wife against polygamy, a procedure known as the "Kairouanese marriage". Polygamy passed into disuse in Tunis in the XIXth century. Manoubia Wertani spoke in public without being veiled in 1924, Bchira Ben Mrad launched the country's first women's organisation in 1937 and these women opened up the way for the early emancipation of Tunisian women.

A new start for the economy

Despite the years of growth and a respectable classification in terms of the Human Development Indicator (98th ranking out of the 182 countries and 4th ranking in Africa), the post-14th January Tunisia discovered the extent of its social problems. Unemployed young diploma-holders and regional disparities sparked off this unprecedented social explosion. In Tunisia today there is a consensus to turn its back on the economic model of “growth without development” and to direct investments as a priority towards the hinterland regions where numerous infrastructure projects have already been programmed this year in the State budget. Furthermore, for the first time there are now direct negotiations between the trade unions and the employers so that the serenity, which had been lost since the 14th January, has now been recovered, namely in the tourism sector. The Tunisian Revolution is thus highly promising in terms of economic growth as well as social equity and cohesion.

Tunis

If today Tunisia is a small country, it is great with its three thousand year-old history. It was the heart of the rich empire of Carthage, a prosperous Roman province, and then the cradle of the Arabo-Islamic civilization in the western Mediterranean. Kairouan was a metropolis with considerable influence and Tunis inherited a long cultural tradition which had been moulded throughout the centuries. The result was in the form of numerous ancient remains such as the El Jem amphitheatre, comparable to the Coliseum in Rome, the Dougga site, a veritable African “Pompey” and other monuments emerged from the High Middle Ages such as the Ribats, the Great Mosque of Kairouan, and the ramparts of Sousse. The capital city itself was left with numerous palaces, medersas and mausoleums whose fine sculptured stone decorations can be admired, marble marquetry, polychrome ceramics and chiseled plaster.

Tradition

An ancient Berber land, Tunisia is a cross-roads country where numerous influences flowed in. Its handicrafts are the fruit of so many traditions. From moulded pottery to engraved silver, woven mergoums to the finely embroidered wedding outfits, from hammered copper to the chechia (cap) made of red felt, painted wooden coffers to the thick carpets of Kairouan... here you can see a thousand-year-old heritage which was passed on, there an Ottoman tradition and somewhere else an Italian input.

Gastronomy

All kinds of flavours can be found in Tunisia. In town and in the great hotels you will find nowadays great Asian restaurants, tapas bars, not forgetting French and Italian cuisine. Numerous restaurants along the coast will delight you with their sea bass and sea bream, octopus and freshly caught squid. As for Tunisian gastronomy, it has its classical dishes such as couscous with grouper, dishes such as the sweet-savoury “marqa hlouwa”, the famous crunchy egg brik, the “mechouia” salad made of grilled and crushed peppers and the Tunisian tajine which is similar to the Spanish tortilla, without forgetting the fine honey and dried fruit patisserie.

Hospitality

Hospitality in Tunisia is a hundreds-years-old traditional value. Being open to others, enjoying exchanges and human contact, Tunisians willingly learn several languages in order to welcome foreign visitors. Their tradition includes a series of small gestures to please their guests, such as a well-filled basket of sun-kissed fruit, the “machmoum” jasmine bouquet with its heady fragrance, mint tea with sweetmeats and the orange flower water which is sprinkled on the hands of the guests after a good dinner like an invitation to remember the pleasant moments spent together... “My home is your home”, it is often said, a saying which is being applied literally in the new charming hotels and guest houses of which there are so many dozens, from the Tunis medina to the oases of the South.

Nature and Adventure

Tunisia is a country with numerous beauty spots such as the powerful pull of the desert, the exuberance of the palm groves, the ever-changing hues of the Mediterranean blue, the steep peaks and canyons and the green fields and forests. There are so many landscapes to be discovered and which are close by and which will leave you with unforgettable memories.

This superb and generous nature is to be experienced intensely through all sorts of sports activities. Sand dune skiing and ULM will make you vibrate in tune with the rhythm of the Sahara. The quad and the sand yacht will give you all the exhilaration of the great open spaces. The kite-surf, para-gliding and underwater diving will make you experience all the beauties of the sea.

Yasmine Golf Course

The landscapes vary from the north to the south of Tunisia but the sun is shining everywhere. Practically all the year round you can compare the numerous courses along the eastern coast which meander between olive and orange groves and Cyprus trees with a view over the blue of the Mediterranean. The golf course in Djerba combines the greenery with the sand dunes along the sea shore, that of Tozeur meanders between the palm trees and the sand-coloured rocks, whereas the golf course in Tabarka, in the north, extends between the dense pine woods as far as the waves of the sea.

The Culture City in Tunis

Espace Art Sadika in Gammarth

Tabarka Jazz festival

Tunis and its outskirts offer a rich cultural life, with art exhibitions and most eclectic concerts, with jazz, classical music and various types of music from around the Mediterranean, not forgetting the traditional Arabo-Andalusian music. In the capital you will also find dancing and contemporary art being exhibited. There is also the Carthage Musical October, the concerts of Ennajma Ezzahra in Sidi Bou Said, the “Jazz à Carthage” festival, the festival of the Dream City contemporary shows, in the medina and these are just some of the events on the capital’s cultural agenda. The touristic regions have not been left out as there is Djerba with its Dar Cherif cultural centre, the events of the “Djerba Explore” park and Tabarka with its jazz festival.

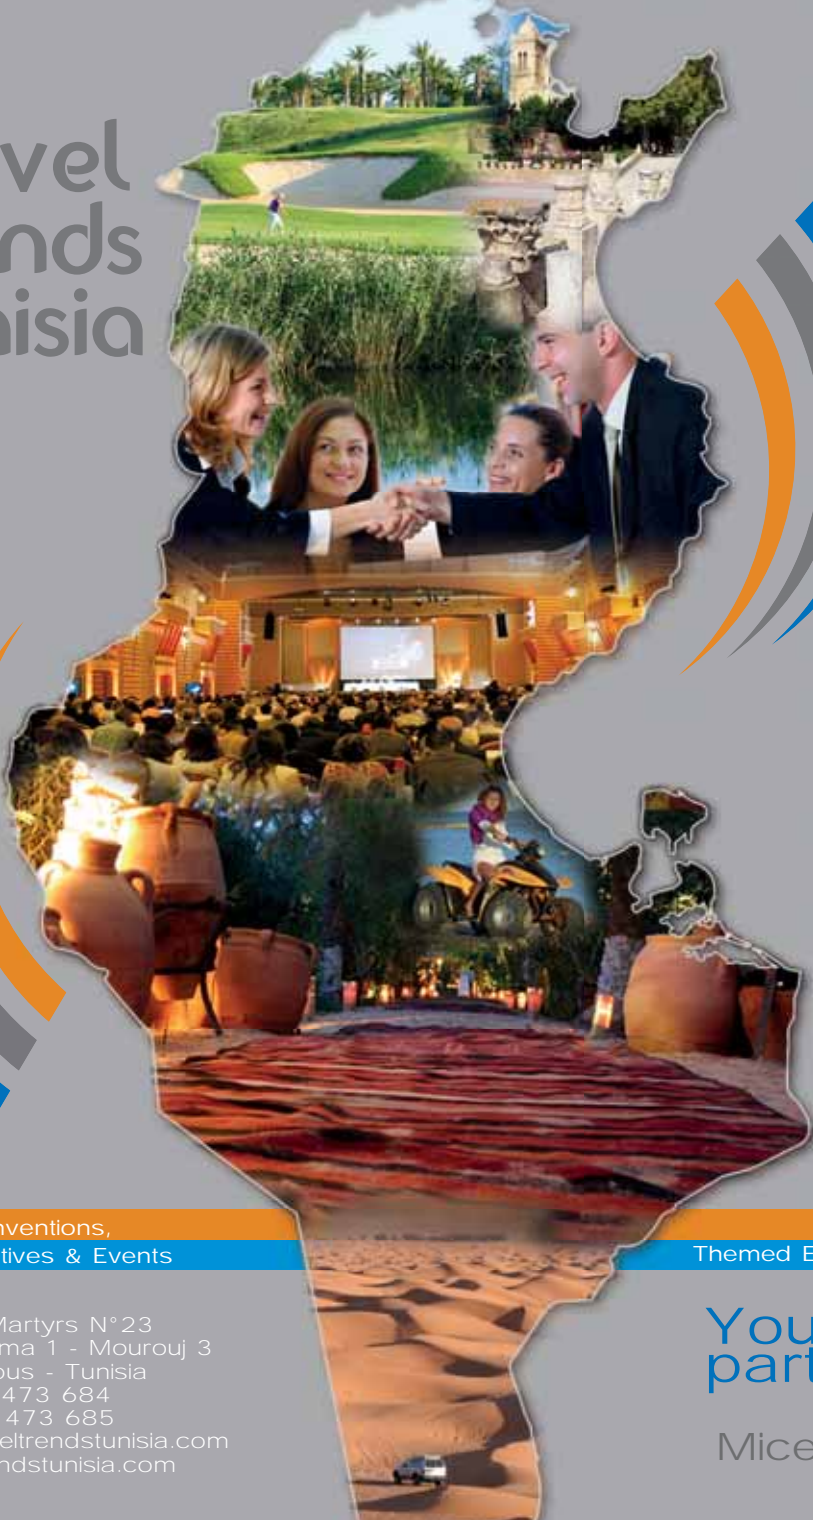

Tunis will soon have new infrastructures for cultural events: the Culture City will have a 1800-seat room for shows, a national museum for plastic arts and two cinemas, as well as a glass geode at 60 meters altitude.

Discovery

Dougga

There are so many things to discover in each region of Tunisia ! – such as country traditions and the wonders of nature so that an endless variety of excursions can be programmed. The extensive road network, the highways linking the different regions, the great hotels distributed in the main cities, the all-comfort Sahara camps, the domestic airlines, and sports or cultural theme parks represent so many ways of exploring the different facets of Tunisia within the framework of original programmes.

A la carte plans

- Foraying into the Great Erg with a bivouac: the true experience of the desert, the magical atmosphere of the camp, the contact with camelriders-guides, heirs of the great nomads...
- The Medinas: Their alleyways provoke an immediate feeling of strangeness – even though modernity has invaded them gaily.
- The Berber villages: An introduction to the rustic life of the villages isolated in fields, steppes or perched on rocky peaks (like Takrouna near Hammamet or Chenini in the south-east). In the program: discovery of handicrafts, donkey ride, meal under a tent...
- The small coastal towns: Deep blue doors, white walls, alleyways permeated with breezes from the sea, small towns like El Haouaria in Cap Bon, or Hergla near Sousse, enjoy an indisputable charm.
- The traditions of Djerba: In Djerba you'll find numerous traditional underground oil mills, one of which has been restored for visits. Djerba Explore park presents scenes of all aspects of everyday life in the menzels (typical rural estates of Djerba).
- The archaeological sites: Often situated in the middle of the countryside, Tunisia's remarkable archaeological sites offer the amazing spectacle of entire cities with all their components – enormous monuments still standing, paved Roman streets, mosaic pavements... – rising up facing the sea or in splendid verdant landscapes...

Tunisia, a top choice for congresses and incentives.

Large open spaces, a friendly atmosphere, living traditions, prestigious monuments, great facilities and infrastructure: Tunisia is a top choice for congresses and incentives. It boasts a wide range of meeting facilities, numerous possibilities for original programmes near to meeting facilities and accommodation as well as palaces and charming hotels or guesthouses for an exceptional stay.

Regions & Venues

Tamerza

Tozeur and Nefta are desert medinas nestling among boundless palmgroves where a delightfully cool atmosphere reigns in the undergrowth. Main towns of the Jerid region (“palm tree country”), situated in a natural corridor linking the extreme south of Morocco with southern Egypt, they once represented major caravan stages at the same time as drawing their wealth from their immense oases of date palms irrigated by dozens of streams.

The architecture of the Jerid offers a very unusual aspect and a pleasant atmosphere due to the high walls, the numerous covered passages and the almost exclusive use of palm trunks and golden bricks forming relief patterns – combinations of lozenges and chevrons. All around, a majestic landscape of barren plateaux, a mere few minutes from the blond dunes of the Sahara. Served by an international airport, the region has a golf course and several de luxe hotels.

Oases

Sites & event locations

Planet Oasis

In the heart of the Tozeur palm oasis, Planet Oasis is a space dedicated to events and business conventions: a 523 m<sup>2</sup> Berber tent, an esplanade for the audio-visual performances and water ballets, boutiques of art and handicrafts, an art gallery and a restaurant and bar.

Eden Palm

Theme park in the Tozeur oasis: the world of the palm tree, seasonal work and local handicrafts, terrace café, 600 m<sup>2</sup> upper terrace, auditorium, local gastronomic products.

Tel: +216-76 45 44 74 - Fax: +216-76 45 23 83

The palm groves

The large palm groves welcome diners in a forest atmosphere or a luxurious garden.

Kaidal tents

Luxurious kaidal tents are intended to host events such as a congress or a gala dinner in an original setting, typically Saharan (hotels Ras El Ain, Sofitel Palm Beach Tozeur...). In a more classical mood, a rustic dinner under a Berber tent may be included in an excursion program.

Traditional houses

In the heart of the palm oases or the Tozeur medina, Saharan-style houses using local materials – bricks of clay and sand, palm wood doors... – offer guests an authentic setting.

Contact: Edhiafa (Tunisian association for alternative accommodation)
edhiafa@hotmail.com

Star Wars film sets

The village of "Tatooine" is still standing in a Saharan landscape with the odd name of Onk Jemel, "the camel neck" (due to the shape of a rocky block carved by erosion). This can be the site of dinners and open air movies.

Camp Mars

Encampment Yadis Ksar Chilane

A silent coat of white sand covers the landscape. Some palms grow against perfectly sketched dunes or then, in the vast palmgrove stretching as far as the eyes can see: Douz, some 250 Km from the Djerba airport, with beautiful modern hotels, is ideal to go at the discovery of the desert.

For lovers of open spaces and exploring, Tunisia has its own paradise: the Sahara, some 40,000 Km<sup>2</sup> of sand deserts favored by rally fans. A corner of the Great Eastern Erg, it offers vaste spaces for exploring and the emotion of tasting the nomad life. Dune skiing and sand karting are some of the activities available in the Great Tunisian South.

The Tunisian south-east is a desert of stone, with here and there a few wild palmtrees against a background of majestic mountains where, however, the age-long efforts of the inhabitants have produced islands of greenness.

You particularly find there spectacular fortified cereal lofts, the Ksour ("castles", plural of ksar), rallying points for the nomads, formed from individual cells – ghorfas – superimposed and juxtaposed. It is also a region of troglodyte houses highlighting the Berber tradition. A little to the north, Matmata offers the unusual spectacle of houses built underground and craters carved from the earth forming the central courtyard.

Ksour country

Chott el-Jerid

Sites & event locations

The “Ksour”

In the heart of an arid landscape of mountains, plateaux and craggy peaks, the “Ksour” look like great rock coloured beehives lost in the middle of nowhere.

Some of them have been restored and can be hired privately (Ksar Ouled Soltane...). The Ksar Ouled Debbab has been set up to host various types of events (vast courtyard, restaurant, rooms...).

Encampment Yadis Ksar Ghilane

The sand deserts

A cocktail in the dunes at sunset, a night in a “luxury” bivouac in the middle of the desert... the exotic and comfort go together well in the Great Tunisian South.

Encampment Mehari Zaafrane

A nomad-themed encampment in the middle of the desert: kaidal tent for seminars, restaurant, pool, accommodation (Berber tents), catering, possible entertainment.

Chott el-Jerid

Chott el-Jerid is a spectacular, radiant choice for magical events. Crossed by an asphalted road, this ancient interior sea extends out of sight. Its glistening surface conjures up improbable mirages.

The island of the great Tunisian South stands out for its unique atmosphere created by luminous simplicity and bewitching serenity. Lying at the gateway to the Sahara, Djerba offers beaches fringed by wild palms and fields dotted with traditional buildings of milky whiteness. From foundouks (caravanserais) to menzels (typical houses), you'll enjoy the interior where tradition is still very much alive.

In Houmt Souk, the main town, the tranquillity of ancient streets, of immaculate whiteness, contrasts with the bustling markets. In the port, you can watch the ballet of fishing boats and pleasure craft.

The destination has become attractive thanks to its busy international airport, golf course, grand casino, new museums and leisure centres and numerous top-rated hotels. Plus, in recent years, a speciality: thalassotherapy (there are 20 centres in existence).

Worth visiting in Djerba: the Borj el Kebir (or Borj Ghazi Mustapha) is a superb fortress built in the 15th century. In Erriadh, the Ghriba synagogue boasts one of the oldest Torah in the world. Guellala is famous for its unglazed pottery: jars, pots, water coolers...

Close to Djerba island, Zarzis is a delightful seaside resort in the Great Tunisian South, next to a vast palm oasis. You'll enjoy the charm of its traditions, its whitewashed houses and its long beaches of white sand fringed with palm trees.

Fondouks

The fondouks or caravanserais once provided lodging for the foreign merchants. Consisting of a vast courtyard surrounded by white-washed galleries and rooms, some of them can host events in a typically Djerbian setting.

Kaidal tents

Luxurious kaidal tents are intended to host events such as a congress or a gala dinner in an original setting, typically Saharan.

Zita Congress hall

In Zarzis, the Zita Beach Resort 4 star-hotel has a 1,300-seat congress hall.

Sousse

Shipping town since Antiquity, Sousse is built on the shore. The old European districts with their wide and sober avenues give the image of a modern and lively town. They are next to the Medina, its magnificent remparts and its exceptional monuments dating from the middle ages. Neighbour to the center of town of Sousse, Port El Kantaoui, pioneer of the integrated touristic stations, keeps growing and develops harmoniously. This resort comprises a golf course and a yachting harbor. Worth visiting in Sousse: the Ribat (moslem convent-fortress), the Kasbah, the archeological Museum...

In Monastir, one can visit the big Ribat founded in the ninth century, today converted into a islamic art museum. Mahdia, the first capital of the Fatimid caliphs, has become a flourishing fishing port ; one can admire the monumental gate called Skifa Kahla ("dark porch"), the Great Mosque and a superb Turkish fortress built in 1596. Beautiful beaches, two golf courses, a pleasant hinterland and remarkable monuments make Monastir and Mahdia pleasing resorts in the center of Tunisia.

The El Mouradi Congress Center in Port El Kantaoui includes a plenary hall accommodating 1,200 people and seven subcommittee rooms. The Vincci Nour Palace in Mahdia boasts a 1,100-seat congress hall and 8 convention rooms.

Caravanserai

Important events can be organized in some historical sites of the medinas. In Sousse, a caravanserai boasts a splendid Arabo-Moslem decor for exceptional events.

The Berber villages

Villages isolated in fields, steppes or perched on rocky peaks for discovery of handicrafts, donkey ride, meal under a tent...

The Cap Bon, a peninsula near Hammamet pointing towards Sicily, is a region where large farming villages stand alongside vast orange groves, vineyards and fishing harbors. Its “capital” is Nabeul, craftsmen’s town renowned for its pottery, its rushmats and its flower essences. One can visit the thermal resort of Korbous, Kelibia’s fort, the archeological site of Kerkouane and the underground quarries of El Haouaria, a small village where the tradition of falconry still exists.

The most famous resort of Tunisia, Hammamet hasn’t stopped to make one dream with its Medina and its magnificent beaches. South of the town, the new integrated resort Yasmine Hammamet comprises upper level hotels and an international class marina. The old hotels keep their assets: their proximity to the town, the charm of their parks in bloom... Hammamet has two golf courses.

the Cap Bon

Sites & event locations

The fort of Hammamet

This imposing fortress dating from the 15th-17th centuries features a vast interior courtyard and terraces over-hanging the beach and the medina.

Palais des Congrès de Hammamet

The Great Congress Palace of the Azur complex has a plenary hall of 700 seats (among which a 100 seat mezzanine), 5 commission and subcommission rooms, from 40 to 80 seats, a business center and a reception hall which can accommodate 800 persons as well as an exhibition area and a shopping center. Furthermore, it has the accommodation services of the Azur complex (three high class hotels and a thalassotherapy centre).

Medina Mediterranea Congress Center

“Medina Mediterranea” in the resort of Yasmine Hammamet, evoking an ancient medina that has been completely re-constructed, boasts a large congress centre in a prestigious and original setting. It has an equipped 2,000-seat multipurpose room, two amphitheatres accommodating 350 and 500 people, 5,000 m<sup>2</sup> exhibition area, subcommittee rooms and a business centre.

A superb coastline carved in hills wooded by pinetrees, a corner of the Mediterranean stolen from the mountainous hinterland, deep waters of perfect purity: such is the site of Tabarka. If you add to that an unusual town with its red roofs where narghileh is smoken on the terrace of Moorish cafés, magnificent beaches, an important infrastructure of scuba diving, a yachting harbor and a jazz festival: so many reasons to fall under the charm of this still young resort of the Tunisian North-west.

An immense cork-oak forest on a mountain massif spreads to the south of Tabarka. Winding through the narrow mountain roads, you come to red-roofed villages and important archaeological sites such as Bulla Regia and Chemtou.

Sites & event locations

Les Aiguilles (The Needles)

In Tabarka, an impressive formation of rocks rising up out of the water sculpted by erosion. At night the rocks are illuminated.

The Basilica

In Tabarka, an ancient Roman cistern, transformed at some point into a church which now houses a small archaeological museum. In summer it also serves as a venue for the music festivals.

Tunis Medina

Majestic Hotel

The Tunisian capital plays with contrasts and contradictions. The old and the new, the popular and the refined, the West and the East live side by side in the most relaxed way. The Medina itself is both monumental and bustling, unfamiliar and immersed in the century. At its doors, the districts built in the early part of the 20th century are among the most typical of the capital.

Important town in history, Tunis displays remarkable monuments. At the same time, it gave itself the means of becoming a modern metropolis. New districts grow like mushrooms with their residential dwellings, offices of companies and their commercial centers. The Greater Tunis reaches a population of 2,412,500 inhabitants (census of 2004).

Traditional houses

For a reception in refined settings, several beautiful old houses with patios have been set up to host this type of events while giving a good idea of Tunisian culture. On the outskirts of Tunis, the ancient beylical palace of Kobbet Ennhas, provides a venue for prestige events.

Diwan Dar El-Jeld: Situated in Tunis's medina, Diwan Dar El-Jeld is an old house adapted to host cocktails, events and banquets in a typically intimate Tunis-style atmosphere. A private room is available specially for banquets; menus are prepared by the gastronomic restaurant Dar El-Jeld.

E-mail: dar.eljeld@gnet.tn - Web : www.dareljeld.tourism.tn

Dar El Behi: This beautiful dwelling with painted ceilings and ancient tilework offers a venue for events in an authentic setting: cocktails, seminars, dinners (traditional Tunisian cuisine) for up to 30-40 people.

15, rue Dar el Jeld, la Kasbah - 1006 Tunis - Tel: 98 99 54 51 - www.elbehi.com

Parc des Expositions et Centre de Commerce International du Kram

Eight minutes away from Tunis, Le Kram Fairground and Business Center spreads over a total covered area of 40,000 m<sup>2</sup> divided into three halls measuring from 4,000 to 10,000 m<sup>2</sup>.

The Culture City

A 1800-seat room for shows, a national museum for plastic arts and two cinemas, as well as a glass geode at 60 meters altitude. (opening: 2013)

Acropolium de Carthage

The turquoise bay of the Coasts of Carthage spread out about fifteen kilometers from Tunis. The village of Sidi Bou Saïd, an ancient summer resort for the inhabitants of Tunis, dominates the sea from its hilltop location. Its charming cobbled streets, famous Moorish cafes and blue and white houses make it a charming place for a stroll, combining simplicity and refinement, sophistication and wild nature. You can also admire the extraordinary Tunisian-style palace built in the 1920s by Baron Rodolphe d'Erlanger, its gardens and sumptuous interior decoration.

Carthage, an attractive residential town, is built over the remains of one of the most glorious cities of Antiquity, founded by the Phoenicians in the ninth century BC: Punic houses, Roman baths, theater, Christian basilicas...

A few minutes away, the hill and endless beaches of Gammarth concentrate the luxury hotels, discos and leisure spots. The region has two golf courses.

Acropolis de Carthage

The former Saint-Louis cathedral is an imposing edifice which overlooks all Carthage. Built in 1894 in a Byzantino-Moorish style and no longer a place of worship, it has been reconverted into a cultural center ; plastic arts exhibits and a classical music festival, the "Musical October" are held there. Inside, high columns, arches and painted wood ceilings contrast against pale blue walls : a prestigious and unusual decor straddling cultures and eras. To welcome events such as launching new products, gala evenings, exhibitions...
